San Jose, CA (PRWEB) October 5, 2009 -- Academic-Services.com (<http://www.academic-services.com>), a provider of college admission consultation in the San Francisco Bay Area, partners with My Ivy Leaguer (<http://www.myivyleaguer.com>), a leading provider of high school subject tutoring and test preparation in New England, to offer more comprehensive college admission consultation and tutoring packages. Together, they have a college admission consulting and tutoring team consisting of an experienced college instructor and graduates of Ivy League and other leading universities in the nation including Columbia University, Princeton University, Harvard University, Stanford University, and the University of California at Berkeley. The business partnership enables both companies to provide in-person college consulting and high tutoring services in the San Francisco Bay Area and New England. They also provide online consultation and online tutoring services to clients outside of these regional areas.

"One of the best ways for high school students to gain admission into the leading universities is through consultation, mentoring, and tutoring by college instructors, former students, and current students from the leading universities in the country. It makes logical sense to be counseled and tutored by staff members who have already been there," states Trung Le, a current college instructor, founder, director, and head consultant of Academic-Services.com. Mr. Le started his San Jose, CA based college admission consulting business after many years of counseling and mentoring many of his own community college students in the San Francisco Bay Area.

Anthony Green founded his tutoring and test preparation business, MyIvyLeaguer.com, which is based in Boston, MA, for similar reasons and for similar passions. When asked about the characteristics of his tutors, he responded, "Our hiring decisions are also based as much on personality as they are on on-paper credentials - all of our tutors, aside from being brilliant and qualified, are also extremely friendly and outgoing." Mr. Green also added, "We want our students to feel comfortable with their tutors, and to be motivated by them - by hiring role models who can connect with their students and inspire them to achieve at their highest level, we're allowing our clients to enjoy a process that might otherwise be stressful and difficult."

Both Mr. Le and Mr. Green agree on the importance of mentors in the lives of students. "Many high school and college students do not have the right mentors to encourage and to guide them through these importance years," Mr. Le adds. "This is another reason why our services are so valuable to parents of high school students."
